

Arnold Arboretum of Harvard University - Research Fellowships, Awards, and Internships

Contributed by aneely on Nov 06, 2018 - 09:40 PM

The Arnold Arboretum of Harvard University promotes and supports research consistent with its mission to discover and disseminate knowledge of the plant kingdom. To foster both independent and collaborative work, the Arboretum offers fellowships and awards to students, doctoral researchers, and professionals of the biological and horticultural sciences. Applicants are encouraged to define and develop their area of inquiry using the Arboretum's resources, including its world-renowned living collection, herbarium, plant records, library and archives, and laboratories, and the expertise of its staff.

There is currently one fellowship, eight awards, and an internship program. Applicants must submit a research proposal online for awards by Feb 1, 2019. Applicants must apply for the internship program by March 1, 2019.

Please see the website for the specific requirements of each award.

The Arnold Arboretum of Harvard University promotes and supports research consistent with its mission to discover and disseminate knowledge of the plant kingdom. To foster both independent and collaborative work, the Arboretum offers fellowships and awards to students, researchers, and professionals of the biological and horticultural sciences. Applicants are encouraged to define and develop their area of inquiry using the Arboretum's resources, including its world-renowned living collection, herbarium, plant records, library and archives, greenhouses, laboratories, and the expertise of its staff.

There is currently one fellowship, eight awards, and an internship program. Applicants must submit a research proposal online for awards by Feb 1, 2019. Applicants must apply for the internship program by March 1, 2019.

Please see the website for the specific requirements of each award.

Article pictures

